Defense Proposed Revised Instruction on First Amendment

The State has introduced evidence of Mr. Ray's speech, religious and/or spiritual beliefs and ideas for the purpose of providing context or background to the alleged events in this case. You may not consider this evidence for any other purpose. The First Amendment of the United States Constitution guarantees every citizen freedom of speech and religious. Thus, you must not be prejudiced or biased against Mr. Ray simply because you disagree or dislike the content of Mr. Ray's speech, religious and/or spiritual beliefs and ideas.
